Currency markets range bound

Despite choppy trading conditions yesterday, equity markets maintained their recent momentum on both sides of the Atlantic. The Euro Stoxx 50 rose for a fifth consecutive day, finishing up by 0.8%. Meantime, the S&P 500 moved higher for the 11th time in the past 12 sessions, gaining 0.6%.

On bond markets, US Treasury yields declined by circa 4bps. Meantime, UK Gilt and German Bund yields were little changed. The spread between German and French 10-year yields remained at circa 84bps also, despite a no confidence vote in the French Government passing yesterday.

Currency-wise, the main pairs were largely range bound. Remarks from Fed Chair Powell, ECB President Lagarde and BoE Governor Bailey had a negligible impact on proceedings. Initially, the dollar was holding a firmer tone in the European session. However, the greenback handed back its gains amid some disappointing US data. The US non-manufacturing ISM fell to 52.1 in November (vs. 55.5 f'cast), while the underlying survey details indicated the pace of jobs growth and new orders slowed in the month.

As trading gets underway this morning, EUR/USD opens in the bottom half of the $1.05-1.06 range once again. Meanwhile, GBP/USD is changing hands above the $1.27 threshold. EUR/GBP remains below the 83p mark.

Today's data calendar is sparse. Eurozone retail sales data are forecast to fall by 0.3% in October. However, barring any major surprises, the release is unlikely to impact the euro. In the US, the latest weekly initial jobless claims figures will garner some interest.
