

Price action remains muted

The action across the main asset markets remained muted yesterday. A dearth of top tier data releases meant there was no new information to provide fresh impetus for investor sentiment. At the same time, remarks from ECB and Fed speakers over the past 24 hours have tended to push back against market expectations for substantial rate cuts this year. However, the remarks have had minimal impact on market rate expectations.

Against this backdrop, the Euro Stoxx 50 fell by 0.3% yesterday. Meantime, on Wall Street, the S&P 500 rose by 0.8%, amid some better than anticipated Q4 earnings reports. In terms of fixed income, benchmark sovereign yields marginally higher across the board. Elsewhere, oil prices crept slightly higher, with Brent crude rising by 0.8%, to above $79 per barrel.

On the currency front, the main FX pairs remained confined to very tight ranges yesterday. Of the limited price action to register, the dollar was under some slight downward pressure. Elsewhere, the yen has been on the defensive overnight, amid a dovish reaction to comments from BoJ Deputy Governor Uchida.

In level terms, the modestly softer dollar sees EUR/USD open up nearer to the $1.08 threshold. GBP/USD is in the lower half of the $1.26-1.27 range. EUR/GBP remains in the 85-86p corridor. EUR/JPY is trading up near the midpoint of ¥160-161.

Turning to the day ahead, the data calendar remains rather sparse. The main release of note will be the latest weekly initial jobless claims figure in the US. Meantime, speeches from a slew of central officials at the ECB, Fed and BoE may garner some attention.
