BoE leaves rates unchanged as expected

As expected, the Bank of England left Bank rate unchanged at 5% yesterday. The MPC voted 8-1 to leave rates on hold, with the dissenter in favour of a 25bps cut. However, the meeting statement had a dovish tilt, noting that "a gradual approach to removing policy restraint remains appropriate". The BoE also announced it will reduce its bond holdings by £100bn over the next year.

As the BoE decision was broadly in-line with expectations, it had only a limited impact on markets. UK futures contracts continue to indicate that the BoE will cut rates in November and a total of 40bps of easing is priced-in for year end.

Elsewhere, there was a positive mood on markets as investors continued to digest the Fed's decision to cut rates by a bumper 50bps. Against this backdrop, the S&P 500 gained 1.7%, while the Euro Stoxx 50 rose by 2.2%. Meanwhile, the BoJ also opted to leave policy on hold overnight as anticipated. The market reaction to the decision has been muted.

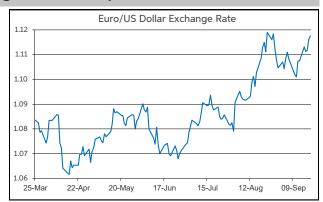

On the currency front, the dollar was under some downward pressure yesterday. At the same time, there was a firmer tone to sterling. This is reflected in GBP/USD opening this morning up above the $1.33 threshold. EUR/USD is operating up in the top half of $1.11-1.12. Meantime, EUR/GBP is down below the 84p handle. USD/JPY remains near the midpoint of ¥142-143.

Already this morning, UK retail sales have printed well above the consensus, rising by 1% in August (vs. +0.4% f'cast). Sterling has been on the front-foot in early trading following the release. Later today, the main highlight will be the flash reading of Eurozone consumer confidence for September.
